Topic: The (hopefully) useful guide to university ethics requirements for accounting education research

By: Amanda Carter and Margaret Lightbody with anyone else who might have something (hopefully) useful to contribute

Abstract: Are you confused about what is required by the University Human Research Ethics Committee for your accounting education research? You are not alone. The purpose of this seminar is to guide you through the complexities of ethics compliance in a light-hearted way for your research. Using a practical, real-life example and the “lived” experience of the presenters, we will explore the level of approval required for different types of data collection, what happens when things become murky, and types of data collection to avoid as a UniSA staff member or HDR student.
